DESCRIPTION

Cockmuir House is an impressive, traditional farmhouse constructed of stone under a pitched, slate roof and dating from 1898. The house been extended and improved over the years, creating what is now a wonderful family home. Spacious and very well appointed accommodation is provided over two storeys. On the ground floor, a vestibule opens to the reception hall with stairs to the first floor and doors to the principal accommodation. To the right is a wonderful, dual aspect sitting room with an open fireplace and a door leading to a sunroom. Left in the hall accesses the dining room also with a fireplace and a wood burning stove. There is a superb dining kitchen with a range of wall and floor units, a granite worktop and a gas fired Aga. The kitchen is open to a bright and airy dining/family room with French doors leading to the garden. A door leads to a rear vestibule. Also on the ground floor is a rear hall, utility room and WC/cloak room. From the rear hall, a flight of stairs leads to a small bedroom (originally for use by the house staff) whilst the main staircase from the hall leads to a family bathroom, shower room and 4 bedrooms, one of which has a door to a dressing area and on to an additional bedroom. A second floor has an attic room with several built in storage cupboards.

The house appears to be in good condition and is very tastefully decorated throughout with many of the features one would hope to find in a property of this age and character including fireplaces, high corniced ceilings and bay windows. The open plan kitchen/dining room, the sitting room and dining room are particularly appealing rooms. The house is heated using mains gas fired central heating and is connected to mains water and electricity. In addition, it is connected to a bank of 38 solar panels (circa 9.5kW) which generates a modest annual income and help reduce ongoing electricity consumption.
