DESCRIPTION

Bushes Croft was formerly two separate cottages built from local whinstone on a small croft, the name Bushes Croft was derived from the field behind, Bushes Field. Over the years the property has been renovated to form one cottage and extended further with the addition of a dining room and bedroom at the back of the property (approximately 20 years ago) and two first floor bedrooms. This charming property has a country cottage appeal, situated towards the rear of the plot overlooking the well maintained cottage garden.

The main entrance opens in to a kitchen/dining area, with an archway in to the galley kitchen with wooden stairs leading to the first floor rooms. The kitchen has an electric cooker, space and plumbing for white goods and a walk in shelved pantry. The double aspect dining area forms the hub of Bushes Croft, an open space to dine and catch up with family and friends with views over the garden. The sitting room adjacent benefits from an open fire, two windows one of which is full height not only flood the room with light but allow views to the garden, and recessed bookshelves and cupboards. The sitting room opens to a small hallway opening to the shower room, and a separate door opens to the additional dining room/garden room and ground floor bedroom, both double aspect rooms with patio doors opening to the garden from the room currently utilised as a dining room, and fitted wardrobes in the bedroom.

The first floor landing opens to a shower room and two bedrooms with dormer windows overlooking the field and woodland behind and one of the rooms has fitted wardrobes, with access in to a small attic space. Bushes Croft offers surprisingly spacious yet adaptable accommodation over two levels which could be altered to suit any specific needs of the new buyer. (subject to relevant consents)

Bushes Croft sits under a slate roof, and the two later extensions have flat roofs. The cottage is double glazed throughout with oil fired central heating powered by a Worcester boiler, housed in the pantry.

Bushes Croft has is a charming country retreat, a delightful family home in a small rural village with primary schools and local amenities in the nearby neighbouring villages of Whithorn and Wigtown.
